2018//ANNUAL REPORT

OUR FOUNDER TIM BURR

I have known Tim Burr for close to 10 years and have always enjoyed his passion for life. This was never made clearer to me than after his accident. Tim has rebounded in a way that makes me proud beyond belief. I have served as somewhat of a mentor to Tim when he approached me with his idea of getting injured athletes out and into the back country via Return To Dirt. I explained to him when we started our business (Xen Technology), it can only take one client or person to make the commitment to you to get going. After saying these words to Tim, I realized that we should be the company to do just that for Return To Dirt. Even though I have every bit of confidence that Return to Dirt would have succeeded regardless, we donated $20,000 to purchase their first RZR. Tim and his crew took that initial donation and were able to get so many others to follow with support for the custom equipment like hand controls, adaptive seats, graphics, a trailer, and so much more. This turned into providing trips for more than 10 athletes during the first summer of operation at no cost to the athlete.

I always trusted the fact that the donation was going to a great cause, but it wasn't until we went along on one of the trips with an athlete that we got the full understanding of what their mission really means. To see the excitement (and the dirt) on their faces and the results of the adrenaline rush that some of these people haven't felt since they suffered a life-altering injury, solidified the decision we made to donate. Seeing a video of another athlete who was able to rip around in the high country above Crested Butte with his 14-year-old son, who was 6 months old at the time of his father's injury, seriously brought tears to my eyes, and I was never more proud to be part of this mission with Tim and the Return to Dirt Family.

From idea to fruition, year one is in the books. We initiated a project that would bring freedom to people with mobility impairments and joy to all of us involved—a fact we consider success in itself. If this year is any indication of things to come, get ready to be impressed. Our founder, Tim Burr, coined our mantra, “If you’re not going hard, you’re not going anywhere!”. We’re going hard... and it’s taking us everywhere.

Return to Dirt exists to be a solution to a problem.

The problem is outdoor accessibility. Our team and resources are the solution. In our first year, we exceeded all expectations and organized a program that uses adapted motorized equipment to facilitate outdoor recreation for people with mobility impairments. Our plans for this coming year are to invest in the long-term sustainability of Return to Dirt by becoming more independent and more efficient. Plans to increase athlete experiences have been laid and our utmost attention is being put toward operating safely and responsibly in the wilderness.

Return to Dirt has brought freedom to the disabled community and awareness to issues surrounding outdoor accessibility—and we're just getting started. We can't wait to see where the road takes us.
